An ordinance which would give the Ohio Edison Co. a 25-year operating franchise was approved on its first reading by city council at a meeting Tuesday night. A similar ordinance was tabled a month ago.

Presentation of the ordinance last night followed a series of meetings between the ordinance committee of council and Ohio Edison officials.

Free Current for City Hall

One provision of the measure is a guarantee on the part of the utility to furnish free to the city sufficient electricity for lighting the city hall building during the life of the franchise.

Meanwhile, the city has to enter into contract with the Ohio Edison on the rate setup which the company offered council in asking for a renewal of its operating permit.

An annual saving of slightly more than $800, based on last year's consumption, is seen in the rate proposal, which is 15 cent for the first 50,000 k. w. h. a month and one cent for all over that amount. At present the city is paying a flat rate of 1.6 cents per k. w. h.

Receive Report on Meters

Members of council last night formally received the Salem Business Bureau's report recommending that the city consider parking meters for the downtown business district and referred the matter to the safety committee, headed by Charles Rheutan.

John C. Litty, a member of the committee, suggested a thorough canvass of the downtown merchants to get their reaction to such a plan. The Business Bureau recommended that the city consider the cent and five-cent types of meters after finding, in a survey, that the meters had proven their merit in other cities comparable in size with Salem.

The bureau also supported a recommendation of the Manufacturers' association that the city provide free parking lots within two blocks of the business section.

Council also took under consideration Police Chief Ralph Stoffer's request for an ordinance which would compel automobile dealers to submit sales data to police headquarters as a means of checking on stolen cars and automobile parts.

Solicitor Lozier Caplan informed council that the city's traffic ordinance, now in effect, would provide for the designation and regulation of bus stops. Some of the solons were under the impression a separate ordinance would have to be passed before the Kirby Lines, Inc., commenced operating their busses here in the near future.

ing In 1922

A former Salem man who started his teaching career in local schools will become superintendent of Sandusky public schools April 1.

He is Karl Whinnery, former Salem high school athletic coach, teacher and principal, who for the past 16 and one-half years has served as principal of Sandusky High school.

Whinnery will step into the Sandusky superintendent's position as successor to Dr. Frank Prout, who becomes president of Bowling Green State university April 1.

Graduated Here In 1909

A native of Salem, Whinnery graduated from Salem High school in 1909 and three years later received his bachelor's degree from Mount Union college. He was outstanding as a scholar and athlete during scholastic and collegiate days.

Leaving Mt. Union in 1912, Whinnery came to Salem High school as a teacher and athletic coach. While teaching here, he continued his studies and in 1915 received a master's degree from the University of Wisconsin. He was married to Marjorie Earselman, also a Mount Union graduate, the same year.

He enlisted for service in the World War in 1917 and served overseas after training at Annapolis Naval academy. He was awarded the Italian Valor medal following 10 months service with the American expeditionary forces.

Returning from service in 1919, Whinnery became principal of Salem High school, a position he held until the fall of 1922 when he accepted a similar post at Sandusky High school.

Trustee of Mt. Union

Whinnery is a member of the board of trustees of Mount Union college as representative of the alumni, elected by ballot. He is also a member of the Methodist church, Alpha Tau Omega fraternity, American Legion and the Masons.

He is a former president of the Ohio Principals' association and served during the past year as co-ordinator in Ohio for the National Education association.

His father, William A. Whinnery, who lives at 645 East Fourth st. is a retired custodian of Fourth Street school building.

EXTEND POWER
TO PRESIDENTVote Down Amendment to Curtail Shuffling of Bureaus

WASHINGTON, March 22.—Administration forces struck from the government reorganization bill today an amendment curtailing presidential powers to reshuffle federal bureaus.

The amendment was eliminated by a vote of 46 to 44. It had been inserted yesterday by a vote of 46 to 43.

Republicans and many anti-administration Democrats favored the amendment and administration leaders fought it vigorously.

The vote striking out the amendment came shortly after the senate had voted 46 to 44 to reconsider its action yesterday approving the proposal.

Sherwood said he has studied all evidence obtained in an investigation of alleged "unwarranted conditions" at Ohio penitentiary and indicated today that he would decide "in a few days" whether ouster proceedings would be brought against Warden James C. Woodard, suspended March 2 for 30 days.

Woodard has indicated he would fight ouster proceedings. William F. Amrine, state superintendent of corrections, has been serving as acting warden during Woodard's suspension.

CANAL PROJECT
IS CONSIDEREDWaterway Plan Favored
By Ohio, Pennsylvania
Speakers

WASHINGTON, March 22.—Advocates of the Lake Erie-Ohio river canal and other waterway and flood control projects today studied suggestions for such projects.

The advice was given by the projects committee of the National Rivers and Harbors congress after hearing Ernest N. Nemeny, Youngstown industrial writer, and William Y. English of Pittsburgh, secretary of the canal group.

Both sought assistance of the committee in pushing the $207,000,000 waterway to completion.

Roy Miller of Corpus Christi, Tex., a member of the committee, strongly counseled advocates of the canal project to press for increased appropriations.

"What's the use of the rivers and harbors congress advocating approval of additional meritorious waterway projects unless congress appropriates money to make them available for public use within a reasonable length of time?" Miller asked.

"I feel appropriations for meritorious rivers and harbors proposals should not be considered as additional government expenditures but as capital investments just as any business concern would spend money to increase its plant capacity."

Ferguson Speaker
As Democrats Meet

EAST LIVERPOOL, March 22.—Democrats of the day launched their campaign here last night at a meeting attended by 175 party supporters, with State Auditor Joseph Ferguson as the honor guest.

Ferguson attacked what he termed "the so-called economy program of Governor Bricker."

O. P. Van Schoik, chief relief examiner for the state, discussed the problem of unemployment and pointed out that there are "33 billion idle dollars in the country which makes 11 million idle men."

He explained that "these idle dollars are in commercial banks and should be used for new investments to aid unemployment."

Director Pushes
Housing Project

CINCINNATI, March 22.—Welfare Director Omar H. Caswell urged a low cost housing project today to eliminate a $35,000 monthly rental bill now paid by the city.

Houses costing $900 would be built through FHA assistance to rent for $2.50 a month, under a plan now in operation in Fort Wayne, Ind., he said.

LISBON, March 22.—David McDonald of East Liverpool went on trial here this morning on a charge of embezzlement.

McDonald, former operator of the Fix-It shop in East Liverpool, was indicted by the January grand jury on four charges of embezzlement and a fifth of obtaining money under false pretense.

Salem motorists, the majority of them still without their new 1939 license plates, were warned today to get their tags before a "last-minute" rush.

A. P. Morris, manager of the motor club office on East State st., where the licenses are being sold, received word Tuesday afternoon from "Cy" Wallace, state registrar of motor vehicles, that "positively, there will be no extension of the April 1 deadline for new plates."

"Morris said he had sold 2,000 new tags and about 250 truck licenses. He still has about 3,000 plates on hand."

FAVOR ADDED
RELIEF FUNDSRecommend Additional Appropriations To Counties

COLUMBUS, March 22.—The Ohio League of Municipalities recommended to a legislative committee today a state appropriation of $5,000,000 additional to counties from sales tax revenues for financing poor relief expenses.

The league also asked the legislature to authorize local subdivisions to levy special taxes on a majority favorable vote instead of the 65 per cent now required, a proposal vigorously opposed by real estate interests.

"The first and primary source" of relief revenue, the league executive committee said, was real estate taxes.

A new formula for distribution of sales tax revenues enacted by the present legislature, the league declared, would deprive local communities of $10,000,000 on a state annual yield of $50,000,000. Local government funds will receive $12,000,000 annually under the new plan although they formerly got 40 per cent of taxes collected.

Cleveland Fined
On Larceny Count

Howard J. Cole, 33, of Cleveland, arrested by Chief Ralph Stoffer for questioning regarding thefts of automobile parts here, was arraigned in Mayor Harhoff's court this morning on charges of petty larceny and reckless driving.

Pleading guilty to both counts, Cole was fined $50 and costs for petty larceny and $10 and costs on the other charge.

According to police, the defendant was identified as the man who took a spare tire from a car owned by Russell Hainan Sunday night.

Chief Stoffer said police were unable to connect him with other theft cases.

SENATE SEEKS
DIES INQUIRYWill Ask Famed Committee to Conduct "Red"
Inquiry In Ohio

(By Associated Press)
COLUMBUS, March 22.—A request from the Ohio senate that the Dies congressional committee investigate charges of un-Americanism in Ohio was being drafted today.

The senate's powerful rules committee approved the proposal, in preference to a legislative inquiry, and concurrence by the senate was considered almost certain.

Cannon Doubtful

James Cannon, attorney for organizations demanding an investigation, expressed doubt that the Dies committee would come to Ohio. Senate leaders assured him, however, that a resolution proposing the legislature's own investigation into charges that un-American and subversive practices were prevalent in state-supported universities would be held in abeyance and could be acted on if the congressional group rejected the invitation.

Frank E. Whittemore, Republican floor leader of the senate, said there seemed to be need for an investigation but questioned whether the legislature had funds and equipment to conduct it properly.

Meanwhile, authors of bills to reorganize the state parole board and the state highway department sought to eliminate flaws and bring the measures back for a vote as quickly as possible.

Both were up for a vote yesterday but again was postponed. Senate leaders desire to change a clause in the parole bill interpreted as empowering the governor to pardon a person before he is convicted, a clause which some persons feared was unconstitutional.

No Salary Increases
Salary increases for officials of the highway department will be stricken from the highway bill, its author, Sen. Walter G. Nickels (R., Tuscarawas), said.

Whittemore said the parole bill might be ready for a vote tomorrow, but it was unlikely that the

BALTIC PORT IS CEDED TO
NAZI FORCESLithuania Depressed, But Determined To Fight For Own Independence

(By Associated Press.)

KAUNAS, Lithuania, March 22.—A state of emergency was proclaimed throughout little Lithuania today, shortly after the government announced formally the return to Germany of the World War-lost Baltic territory of Memel.

The Lithuanian cabinet announced the return of Memel, 1,099 square-mile territory with 150,000, mostly German, population, early this morning.

German storm troop formations and Memel Nazis at once began taking over public buildings, the radio station and other posts in the City of Memel, which has been Lithuania's only port.

The regular troops of the German army, however, apparently had not yet crossed the frontier.

The Lithuanian parliament in an emergency session this morning approved the cession of Memel.

Population Depressed
The official Lithuanian announcement said:

"The cession of Memel, which has been forced on Lithuanians, has depressed the population but there is determination to fight for the independence of Lithuania herself."

The German storm troops halted the frenzied flight of Jews and other refugees from the little territory.

The Lithuanian army began gradual evacuation of Memel.

The state of emergency declared by the government resembles martial law. Officials said one reason it was proclaimed was to facilitate withdrawal of the Lithuanian troops.

A Lithuanian defense ministry official declared, however, that German army troops crossed the frontier at Skirvyte, that they disarmed Lithuanian frontier police, stopped freight cars and trucks carrying refugees and property out of Memel and forbade all to leave the territory.

Exodus Stopped
Their activities, this official said, virtually stopped the exodus of refugees. He declared that storm troops even occupied the Memel light-house.

The official said the Lithuanian army in Memel was evacuating equipment and that withdrawal of Lithuanian troops was imminent.

Earlier reports said the troops, frontier guards and customs officials had been withdrawn overnight. The cabinet announced return of the territory to Germany, which lost it in the World War, this morning.

There was no telephone communication before now between Kaunas and Memel, 30 miles from the East Prussian border, but roundabout communications told of delirious rejoicing by Germans in the beleaguered streets of Memel, the port city. Lithuanians wept openly.

From Tilsit, East Prussian town on the now eased frontier, thousands of Germans poured into Memel.

KIT CARSON—Avenger!

by EVELYN WELLS

SYNOPSIS

In the spring of 1829, Kit Carson, then 19, first rode with a party of trappers from Taos, New Mexico, across the desert and into California. The men sought beaver fur which was then to commence what gold was later to become. Fighting the Apache, harassed by Mexican authorities, ambushed by the Mojave redskins, adding always to their store of thick pelts—the party reached Los Angeles before they returned home. Again "Taos lightning" seared trapper throats, and for one brief week Kit knew riches and revelry. At length, "I'll never be such a tarnation fool again," vowed Kit, nor was he. In the fall of 1830 Kit rode again with a band of trappers who followed what would later be the Oregon trail. Snow—and Blackfeet Indians—halted them in the region which was later to become part of Wyoming. It was during a brush with the Indians that Kit first caught sight of the beautiful maid, Pine Needle, whose father, the mighty Chief Red Bear, he was soon to meet in personal combat.

CHAPTER VIII

Kit fired. The chief of the Blackfeet pitched forward. The arrow trained upon Kit broke under him. Juan, the Indian boy Kit had brought from Oregon, ran forward with his knife and took the scalplock of Red Bear.

Kit was furious.

"That's plain onchristian," he roared. "But he was thinking of the girl in the white doeskin who had ridden beside this chief. And he thought, 'She'll hear of this. Tales travel fast among the Indians.' She'll think I'm to blame."

They waited all day and night before the grove, but the chiefless Indians remained hidden. The trappers made litters of long poles and buffalo hides to swing hides between horses for the wounded men. Trapper-fashion they sucked clean the wounds, bandaging them with the inner bark of sycamore. Jacques, the French Canadian, had been shot in the right leg, evidently with a poison arrow. During the day the limb swelled and discolored.

Even Jacques could not protest. He pulled a deerskin robe over his face and bit his stiff folds as his friends worked to save him. Kit's hunting knife, an ax to break the bone, a blade heated white by fire to cauterize the wound, and the thing was over. When the awful task was done, Kit was nearly as spent as the man whose life he had saved.

"I seen that done once on the Santa Fe trail," he told the men. "I was a sprout of sixteen and I did the cauterizing. Injun arrows can be more pisonous than a dozen rattlers and Gila monsters put together."

He brought his men, safely back to Captain Fitzpatrick's camp on the Arkansas.

Through the remaining months of that winter, thoughts of the scalped chief troubled Kit. To kill an Indian was white man's work if the Indian deserved killing. But to scalp him later was, as Kit often said, plain "onchristian." Only later when a bounty was put on Indian locks did white men take up the savage practice.

It was the Indian girl's hearing of this he dreaded. Already his men had given him a new title that would be spread throughout the plains, "The Avenger." The taking of that scalp would be laid to him. Indian troubles thickened around them. The death of Red Bear would be avenged by the Blackfeet nation. "They'll get even with us sure," Kit told Fitzpatrick. "We'd better find a new camp for the spring hunting. Fur will be good after this cold winter and we don't want to spend our time fighting Blackfeet."

So they camped in a spread of sagebrush under a green hill in Wyoming and Kit, not certain the Blackfeet Indians would not follow, tied the horses' forelegs to prevent an Indian stampede. Fitzpatrick set an extra guard. And one night under the widening stars of spring, the trappers awakened to the crack of sentries' rifles as a band of Indians tore down the hill to stampede the horses.

"I thought they'd come," Kit checked, sitting up in his blanket without troubling to lift the long Hawking rifle that was always clutched in his arm as he slept. "They haven't any of our horses. Cap'n, I hobbled 'em!"

And truly, at dawn the horses were found safe in the sagebrush and with them was an extra horse standing over his dead master—a Blackfeet warrior killed by the guard's rifle.

Kit knew Indian trickery and could match them trick for trick. Now he said, "We'd better get at least a hundred miles away."

Moving up Green river they were watched on every side by hidden eyes. But the beaver pelts were rich and full that year and other plentiful. They set traps defiantly and cursed the Blackfeet who emptied them in the darkness of night. By day they saw on the mesas the smokes of Indian signal fires. They did not leave camp except in sets of twelve.

Kit led such a band into an ambush of sixty Blackfeet. His mind—trained by much danger to work instinctively as an animal's—saved them. Without halting their pace, he raced with his men the gantlet of savages, and only two of the trappers were slightly wounded by arrows.

"Saved our scalps, narrer shavel!" Kit reported to Fitzpatrick.

The memory of the beautiful girl continued to puzzle Carson. The Blackfeet was one of the most brutally savage of tribes. What was she doing among them?

Another day he found twenty beavers building a dam. This was a piece of rich good luck, and the trappers waded into the dam killing the furry tollers with clubs. Kit glanced anxiously at the sun.

"Must be about four o'clock," he said. "No time to skin 'em. We'll cache the lot, and come back tomorrow."

To cache such a large haul required great skill. Kit had learned the art from French Canadian trappers who took it from the Indians. The men dug a pit on the river bank, laid in their beaver, and carefully covered the hole with the sod. They all waded with earth and carefully blown so not a human print should show. Kit surveyed the ground admiringly.

"That's a right smart cache," he said.

But when they returned next day the cache had been rifled—the rich fur was gone. So Kit Carson swore eternal warfare on the Blackfeet tribe. Then Fitzpatrick gave him eleven men and wished him God speed. Over rolling mesas and green prairies in this spring of 1832 rode Kit Carson, "The Avenger."

Between criss-cross of buffalo trail he perceived the "Indian sign."

"Blackfeet!" said Kit, his eyes agleam.

From the buffalo hide tepees, women and children ran wailing. The tripod before the fires bore no shields.

"The Warriors are away!" gloated Kit. "We can capture the women and make the Blackfeet swear to peace."

Then he once more saw the Indian girl of his dreams, clad in the white doeskin of a great chief's daughter, wampum in her hair, scorn on her lips. Spokeswoman, this beautiful girl for her tribe.

She addressed him in the Blackfeet tongue.

"We have heard of you, Kit Carson. So now you make war upon women!"

Kit's men were avid. Here was such revenge as they had never hoped for.

But a slender girl was defying Kit Carson, queenly in her dress of fringed white doeskin, with the white wampum of a chief's daughter in her plaited hair. Before her blazing beauty Kit's glance grew shameful. Suddenly he leaped from his saddle to study her fierce glance.

"Gall!" he cried. "Do you know your eyes are blue?"

She faltered in her fierce trade.

Her face was suddenly humbled, as if afraid.

"I am Red Bear's daughter," she said. "You killed my father."

Was she? Kit would never know the truth from her. Pine Needle was her name among the Blackfeet. But Kit, who would know many tribes, would swear she was white.

Many white women were to be found among the Indian tribes that roved the continent in the past century. Some had been kidnapped and were held for ransom. Some were married or adopted into the tribes. Many a pioneer mother who died in the great trek westward left a child to be reared by the redskinned people.

There were famous cases. Kit himself as a boy had seen, while crossing the Rio Grand on his way to Chihuahua, a white girl in an Apache band who hid at his approach. Many white women were ransomed but fled from civilization back to husbands who were chiefs and babes half-Indian. In the sixties there would be the famous case of Cynthia Ann Parker, stolen at the age of nine by Comanches who massacred her family in Texas. For decades, Cynthia Ann was a legend in the Southwest. Citizens and soldiers tried in vain to rescue her. The white girl fled from them. Cynthia Ann became the mother of Quanah, the last of the great Comanche chieftains.

And there were more ancient cases. As early as the year 1170, three hundred Welsh men and women came to America. They vanished. But it is said that Welsh words are to be heard in the Modoc dialects of Oregon. Also, what became of the colony founded in 1585 in Virginia by Sir Walter Raleigh, that vanished leaving behind the single word "Roanoke" carved on a tree?

In red streams crossing our continent, much white blood has mingled. Kit Carson would often wonder, recalling Pine Needle as she stood now, like a peeled white willow wand before the darker Blackfeet women, defying Kit and his avengers.

Her lack of fear delighted him. He knew the trick of it, fighting down fear, feeling only contempt!

Her face was suddenly humbled, as if afraid.

"I like your gumption, gal," he told her with the smile that had won women's hearts from Taos to California.

Her answer was like a hiss. "Scalper!"

"Listen here, ma'am," Kit protested, shocked. "I didn't do that to your pa. Scalpin's a dirty Injun trick."

Instantly he was horrified. The blue eyes in the tanned golden face blazed.

"Well, I—" he floundered unhappily, and backed his half-broken horse away. "We'll be moseying on ma'am. Beggin' your pardon...."

His men stormed after him. "You can't back out of this, Kit. Cap'n sent us to get even."

Kit's answer deepened their indignation.

"How was I to know he was her pa!"

She was beautiful, and she had defied him. Riding back to the Green river camp, Kit warred with his thoughts. Probably she was Injun! Probably he was a fool to let her go!

Moving up Green river, the band met the trapper, Antoine Robidoux of the famous family of western traders, and his men. Antoine had been the first fur trader out of old Taos. (The Fort Robidoux, which he founded in 1832 in Colorado, was the pioneer American trading post beyond the Great Divide. Later, with Kit Carson, Antoine would serve as interpreter with General Kearny in California in 1846.)

The two bands joined and rode together toward the great summer rendezvous where all the trappers of the Southwest would gather to sell their furs to the traders from St. Louis.

Her face was suddenly humbled, as if afraid.

"I like your gumption, gal," he told her with the smile that had won women's hearts from Taos to California.

Her answer was like a hiss. "Scalper!"

"Listen here, ma'am," Kit protested, shocked. "I didn't do that to your pa. Scalpin's a dirty Injun trick."

His men stormed after him. "You can't back out of this, Kit. Cap'n sent us to get even."

Kit's answer deepened their indignation.

"How was I to know he was her pa!"

She was beautiful, and she had defied him. Riding back to the Green river camp, Kit warred with his thoughts. Probably she was Injun! Probably he was a fool to let her go!

Moving up Green river, the band met the trapper, Antoine Robidoux of the famous family of western traders, and his men. Antoine had been the first fur trader out of old Taos. (The Fort Robidoux, which he founded in 1832 in Colorado, was the pioneer American trading post beyond the Great Divide. Later, with Kit Carson, Antoine would serve as interpreter with General Kearny in California in 1846.)

The two bands joined and rode together toward the great summer rendezvous where all the trappers of the Southwest would gather to sell their furs to the traders from St. Louis.

Her answer was like a hiss. "Scalper!"

"Listen here, ma'am," Kit protested, shocked. "I didn't do that to your pa. Scalpin's a dirty Injun trick."

Instantly he was horrified. The blue eyes in the tanned golden face blazed.

"Well, I—" he floundered unhappily, and backed his half-broken horse away. "We'll be moseying on ma'am. Beggin' your pardon...."

Her face was suddenly humbled, as if afraid.

"I am Red Bear's daughter," she said. "You killed my father."

Was she? Kit would never know the truth from her. Pine Needle was her name among the Blackfeet. But Kit, who would know many tribes, would swear she was white.

Many white women were to be found among the Indian tribes that roved the continent in the past century. Some had been kidnapped and were held for ransom. Some were married or adopted into the tribes. Many a pioneer mother who died in the great trek westward left a child to be reared by the redskinned people.

There were famous cases. Kit himself as a boy had seen, while crossing the Rio Grand on his way to Chihuahua, a white girl in an Apache band who hid at his approach. Many white women were ransomed but fled from civilization back to husbands who were chiefs and babes half-Indian. In the sixties there would be the famous case of Cynthia Ann Parker, stolen at the age of nine by Comanches who massacred her family in Texas. For decades, Cynthia Ann was a legend in the Southwest. Citizens and soldiers tried in vain to rescue her. The white girl fled from them. Cynthia Ann became the mother of Quanah, the last of the great Comanche chieftains.

And there were more ancient cases. As early as the year 1170, three hundred Welsh men and women came to America. They vanished. But it is said that Welsh words are to be heard in the Modoc dialects of Oregon. Also, what became of the colony founded in 1585 in Virginia by Sir Walter Raleigh, that vanished leaving behind the single word "Roanoke" carved on a tree?

In red streams crossing our continent, much white blood has mingled. Kit Carson would often wonder, recalling Pine Needle as she stood now, like a peeled white willow wand before the darker Blackfeet women, defying Kit and his avengers.

Her lack of fear delighted him. He knew the trick of it, fighting down fear, feeling only contempt!

Her face was suddenly humbled, as if afraid.

"I like your gumption, gal," he told her with the smile that had won women's hearts from Taos to California.

Her answer was like a hiss. "Scalper!"

highway measure could be put in shape before next week.

The legislative relief committee gave its attention today to county and city officials after hearing representatives of farm organizations and city property owners declare they would oppose attempts to increase real estate taxes for poor relief revenue.

The administration's bill to reorganize the conservation division, already approved by the senate, was reported out by the house conservation committee without change.

Accept Substitute Bill
The house committee on organization of state government accepted a substitute bill to add a third member to the state civil service commission. The measure, labeled as "definitely an administration bill," replaces a proposal to abolish the present commission and permit the governor to appoint a new three-member body.

The house taxation committee began consideration of the administration bill to abolish the four-member tax commission and replace it with a single commissioner and three-member board of tax appeals.

Up for a vote in the senate today was a bill to create a committee which would investigate the state's natural resources as a step toward establishment of a state park system.

At The Grand
Showing at the Grand tonight for the last time is a murder mystery and a rackets story. The first is "Mr. Wong, Detective," featuring Boris Karloff in the leading role, with Grant Withers, Maxine Jennings and Evelyn Brent. The other film, "Risky Business," gives romantic leads to George Murphy and Dorothea Kent.

Postponed Again
LISBON, March 22.—The trial of Luther Hager, of Smith's Ferry, Pa., indicted by the recent grand jury on charges of operating a motor vehicle without the owner's consent, originally scheduled for Monday, March 13, and postponed until Tuesday of this week, has again been postponed until Monday, April 3.

Hager is charged with stealing an automobile owned by Frank Dawson of East Liverpool, and driving it eastward to a point near the Pennsylvania state line, where he abandoned the car and escaped after wrecking it. He was recently apprehended near New Cumberland, W. Va., and brought back here to answer to the indictment.

Probate Entries
Application for release of estate of Herbert S. McGraw from administration filed and approved. Petition to determine inheritance tax also filed.

Theater Attractions

The romantic team of Loretta Young and Warner Baxter, seen first in "Wife, Doctor, Nurse," comes to the screen again in "Wife, Husband, Friend." The comedy shows Thursday, Friday and Saturday at the State theater.

Concluding tonight is the Claudette Colbert-Herbert Marshall film, "Zaza," story of a French musical hall star who rose to fame in the legitimate theater.

They Get Married
"Wife, Husband and Friend" opens with Loretta and Warner blissfully happy in their marriage. Loretta has money, a husband and a lovely home. But she wants one thing more. She wants to sing! And to make matters worse, she does.

Encouraged by Cesar Romero, her music teacher, and a group of well-meaning friends, Loretta makes her debut on the concert stage in spite of Warner's protests. The debut is successful, thanks to her husband's seat-selling efforts, and she plans a cross-country tour.

As if this wouldn't cause dissension enough, Binnie Barnes steps into the picture in the role of a beautiful and famous opera singer and discards that Warner Baxter had, among other things, a magnificent baritone voice. So he goes on tour! Now, with Loretta going one way and Warner going the other, it seems they might never get together.

Ten Chief Causes of Traffic Accidents in SALEM

No. 5, "Swinging Out of Line"

The possibility of having to "brake down" in a hurry apparently does not occur to this motorist as he swings out of line on a wet street to pass a slower moving car near an intersection.

Simple enough was the passing maneuver, but it took too much of the driver's attention. What he did not see in time was the truck coming into his path at the intersection.

Slippery asphalt and rubber make a treacherous combination as the driver of the sedan sets his brakes and goes into a spin, the automobile narrowly averting a crash with the truck.

Added impetus rolls the sedan against a tree. (Washington Star Staff Photos; with cooperation of American Automobile Association.)

Tyson Says, "YOU BET YOUR LIFE" When You Drive at High Speeds!

Do you ever buy a Sweepstakes ticket? You hardly expect to win, do you? But you think you might! Do you ever take an occasional chance in traffic, either walking or driving? You never expect to lose, do you? But you MIGHT, for you are ELEVEN TIMES as likely to be killed or injured in an automobile accident this year as the holder of a sweepstakes ticket is to win even a small prize! You are thirty-two times as likely to lose your life as the holder of a sweepstakes ticket is to win a major prize!

When you gamble in lotteries, your stake is a few dollars at most, but when you gamble in traffic YOU BET YOUR LIFE!

CINCY HURLERS BRILLIANT IN SPRING GAMES

GOOD PITCHING, TIGHT DEFENSE HELPS REDLEGS

Choice of Cincinnati For Top Berth In League Has Possibilities

TAMPA, Fla., March 22—Figures worked out by the most reliable amateur statistical methods show that impressions given off by a parade of experts picking the Cincinnati Reds for something close to a pennant have a solid basis, founded on brilliant pitching and tight defensive play.

Of course, Bill McKeechne knows that these are only the Florida wars and don't count in September. However, including yesterday's 4-3 honey-gathering expedition against the Boston Bees, the Reds have done more than win six of their ten games.

An assortment of Red pitchers have held the opposition to an average of three runs and five-plus hits a game, a total of 31 runs and 54 hits.

Surprised By Dodgers

The most any team has scored against Mr. McKeechne's hurlers was the Dodgers' eight runs in the season's opener. The Dodgers got nine hits then and only the Boston Red Sox, with their 5-4 victory March 18, have repeated that performance.

The day after the Dodgers got their nine, Whitey Moore and Rookie Gene Thompson, Jr., held them to none at all. Since then the Red pitchers have turned in one three-hitter, one five-hitter, and yesterday's two-hitter.

They held the mighty thunderbolts of the New York Yankees to 11 hits in two games, one of them 12 innings.

The Yankees got just two runs in those 20 innings of baseball and won one, 1 to 0, by holding the Reds to one hit. The Reds took the other, 2 to 1, in the overtime.

In three games the opposition has been held to one run. One game showed two runs against the Reds, one three, and one four.

Meanwhile the Reds have been thumping out 91 hits for 47 runs. In only one game, the Yankees' one-hitter, were they out battad.

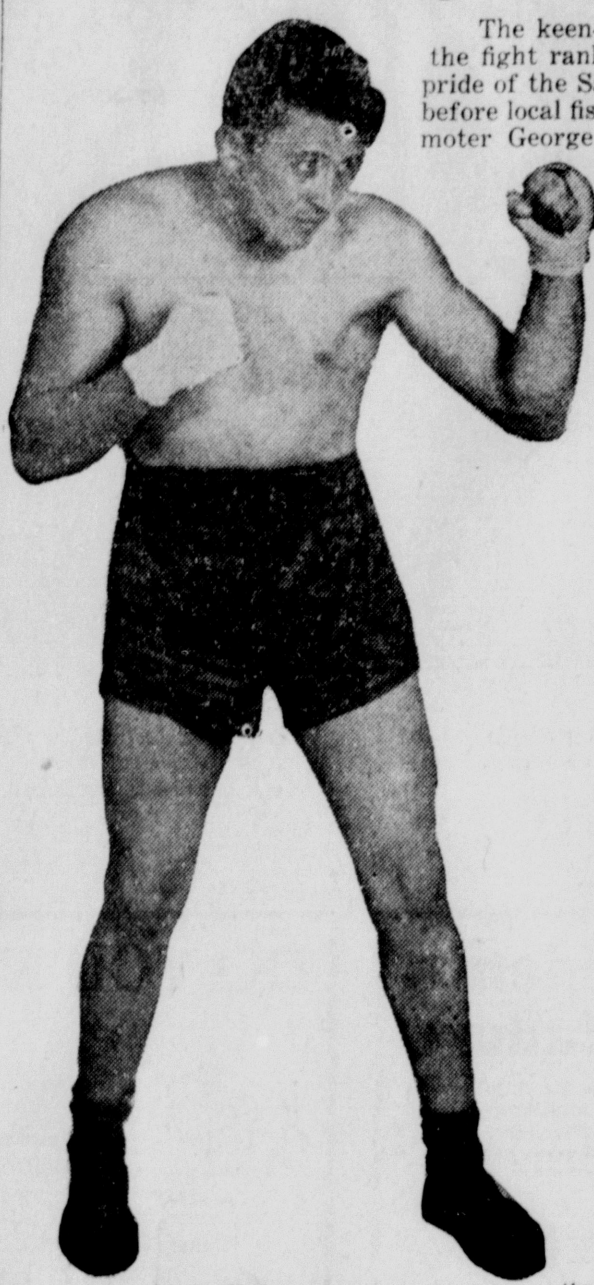

Share Laurels

About everybody on the Red pitching staff except double no-hit Johnny Vander Meer and Paul Deringer has shared in such laurels as may accrue to worthy efforts in the spring. Johnny and Paul have been ill.

Lee Grissom has done most of the consistent tight pitching, with Moore, Red Barrett and Bucky Walters chiming in and a number of the young fellows like Thompson, Cook and Livengood going to town in their brief appearances.

Whether this will mean anything in mid-season is what Mr. McKeechne would like to know.

Al DePerro Makes Debut Here Tomorrow In Preliminary To Weekly-Williams Bout

Hass, Jimmy Tranett, Tommy Sisko, and others.

O'Hara won the Pennsylvania 122-pound title in 1937 and was a Cleveland Golden Gloves champion in 1936. He was a diamond belt winner in Pittsburgh in 1937.

Dell and O'Hara will be meeting for the second

The keen-eyed, broad-shouldered young newcomer to the fight ranks at your left is Al DePerro, heavyweight pride of the Salem Athletic club, who will make his debut before local fight fans in one of four bouts booked for Promoter George Julian's professional boxing show at the Memorial building tomorrow night.

DePerro, who is managed by Julian, will mix leather with Frank Catanese of Rochester, Pa., in a six-round preliminary scrap leading up to the 10-round main go between Harry Weekly of Alliance, the Ohio lightweight champion, and Johnny Williams of Warren.

A native of New Waterford, DePerro has been fighting professionally since last fall when he made his first "punch-for-pay" appearance in Motor Square Garden in Pittsburgh. Before turning pro, he compiled an outstanding amateur record.

Faithful training and daily workouts have combined to place DePerro in top condition for his first fight here. He is exceptionally anxious to make good in his local appearance since he will be watched by Mike Getz, Cleveland fight manager, who has promised to line up some bouts in Cleveland for him if he shows well here.

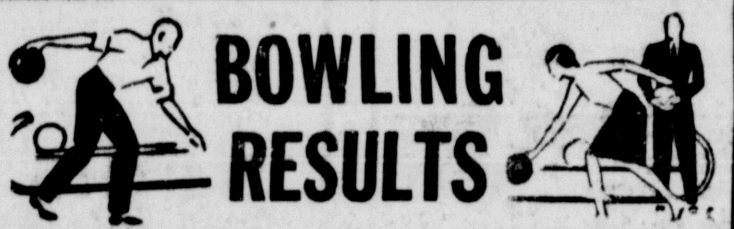

DePerro is 20 years old, weighs 188 pounds and stands six feet in height. He has had two professional bouts, both against Jack Solomon of New York. He defeated Solomon both times.

The New Waterford fighter entered the professional ranks with a record of 95 victories as an amateur. He lost only two fights during his impure career. Three of his amateur victories were over Willie Davis, Youngstown Golden Gloves champ, who made an impressive showing in bouts here last year.

DePerro will meet Catanese in the second bout of the show, which is scheduled to start at 8:30. Ernie Perolle of Darlington, Pa., and Gene Izenor of Morgantown, W. Va., will square off in the curtain-raiser.

The semi-final will send Johnny O'Hara of Dayton against Eddie Dell of Cleveland at 122 pounds. Dell, who has won 60 of 73 fights, was California champion in 1934 and 1935. He has performed against some of the best boys in his division, including George Pace of Toronto, Leo Rittenour, Jackie Landers, Lou Laure, Johnny Durko, Billy time. Their previous bout was a close one with Dell winning by decision.

Fighters who will appear in the semi-final and final bouts will weigh-in at 3 p. m. tomorrow at the office of Dr. R. T. Holzbach, physician for the Salem Boxing and Wrestling commission.

BOWLING RESULTS

A tie for first place in the National league was broken at the Masonic temple alleys last night as the Salem News won two out of three games from Fitzpatrick & Strain to take over sole possession of the top position.

Kelly's Service, which was formerly tied for the lead, dropped to second place by losing two out of three games with the Moose. The News now leads Kelly's by one game. The National league has two weeks to run before completing its schedule.

Other National league matches gave the Masons two wins over Whitehead Products and Bloomberg's three wins over the Metzger Hotel by forfeit.

The E. W. Bliss Co. five won two of three games with Sarbin's Cigars at the Grate Recreation alleys last night to remain far out in front in the second half race of the City Duckpin league.

Sheen's Super Service, pulled into second position by taking three games from Art the Jeweler. In other matches, the Pottery took two out of three games from the Salem Builders and the Colonial Billiards won three heats with the Bliss Pattern Shop.

A special match at the Grate lanes saw the Glidden Paint ladies team, which recently finished among the leaders in the Ohio Women's Bowling tournament, defeat a local men's team, 2480 to 2460. The ladies were allowed a handicap of 46 pins a game.

Mrs. Frieda Orr was high for the Glidden team, turning in a 526 series. Earl Grate, who hit 619 while bowling in the Quaker City league Monday night, led the men with 551.

HOCKEY LEAGUE PLAYOFFS OPEN

Stanley Cup Winner May Come From Middle of Standings

(By Associated Press)

Although the National hockey league's playoff system was greatly changed this year when the old two-round lineup was dropped, it still seems probable that the Stanley cup winner will come from somewhere down in the middle of the regular-season standings.

The champion Boston Bruins and the second-place New York Rangers battled each other virtually to a standstill in their opener last night. They played nearly an hour of overtime before the Bruins finally pulled out a 2-1 decision. Their series runs four-out-of-seven games, so they can't have many more like that and still have much strength left for the cup finals.

Meanwhile the two dark horses of the playoffs, the Toronto Maple Leafs and Montreal Canadiens, had comparatively easy victories. The Leafs rolled over the crippled New York Americans, 4-0, while the Canadiens, starring Goalie Claude Bourque, downed Detroit's Red Wings, 2-0.

CUBS SURE OF TIE FOR FIRST

Baptists Need Victory Tonight To Tie Cubs

The Carroll Cubs of the Church basketball league assured themselves of at least a tie for second round honors, when they downed the Emmanuel, 22-20 at the Memorial building last night.

The Baptists, who need to win their game tonight to share first place, defeated the Friends 31-15.

The Cubs lead the league with seven wins against one defeat, while the Baptists have won six and lost one to remain in the running.

In other Class C games, the Methodists defeated Trinity, 24-17, and the Christians won a close fray from St. Paul, 16-14.

OREGON TO BATTLE OHIO FOR LAURELS

SAN FRANCISCO, March 22—University of Oregon defeated University of Oklahoma 55-37 last night to win the western regional title of the National Collegiate Athletic association.

Oregon, Pacific coast champion, will meet Ohio State, eastern regional and Big Ten champion, for the national title in Chicago March 27.

Wrestling Results

READING, Pa.—John (Dropkick) Murphy, 203, Boston, threw Pat Corrigan, 200, Dublin, 38-44.

NEWARK, N. J.—Emil Dusek, 218, Omaha, Neb., defeated "The Golden Terror" (The Terror refused to answer bell for second fall).

INDIANAPOLIS—"Lord" Lansdowne, 178, Barrington, England, defeated Buck Weaver, 180, Terre Haute, Ind., two of three falls.

Fight Results

NEW YORK.—Pedro Montanez, 141½, Puerto Rico, knocked out Howard Scott, 140, Washington, (2).

ROCHESTER—Patsy Pernoni, 183, Cleveland, outpointed Pete Tamalons, 185, Buffalo, (8).

AVERILL, PYTLAK LEAVE HOLDOUTS; SIGN CONTRACTS

Earl Signs for $13,000 To Play Eleventh Year For Indians

NEW ORLEANS, March 22—Smoke from the pipe of peace curled out of the Cleveland Indians wigwam today but the chiefs still perturbed by the antics of diminutive Frankie Pytlak, puffed rather jerkily.

The spirited backstop from Buffalo had a spell of temper- (ment) yesterday and, spurning for the moment his reported $13,000 salary, stormed out of the spring training ball park bag and baggage.

Pytlak Returns

But Frankie returned hours later after a huddle with Alva Bradley, the club president. The catcher remarked simply that C. C. Slapnicka, the Tribe's vice president and business boss, "doesn't understand me."

"Neither do I," said Bradley. "Make it three," Manager Oscar Vitt put in.

At Cleveland, meanwhile, Centerfielder Earl Averill abandoned his hold-out role and signed a contract to play his eleventh season with the Redskins. The Earl's wage is believed to be about $13,000, compared to $12,000 and a $2,000 batting average bonus last year.

Only Two Holdouts

Thus Pitchers Johnny Broaca and Willis Hudlin remain Cleveland's only hold-outs.

Pytlak's puzzling diodes disclosed that he had not signed his 1939 contract. After the tempest was over, however, he placed his signature on the dotted line.

The catcher took his equipment from his ball park locker and cryptically remarked, "I'm not going to stand for this!"

The management reported Pytlak's case to baseball Commissioner K. M. Landis for adjudication, but it was believed this phase ended when Frankie returned to the fold.

Frankie Tells Vitt

Vitt and Slapnicka conferred with Pytlak Monday night and Vitt said the backstop had complained because Rolfe Hemley was sharing catching duties in the grapefruit games.

"Frankie seemed to think he ought to catch every inning of every game," said Vitt. "He didn't like the way I was running things and said so."

It was an open secret last year that Pytlak resented the choice of Hemley as pitcher Bob Feller's preferred receiver. Yet it was Pytlak who caught Feller on the last day of the season when the Iowan fanned 18 Detroit batters for a new major league record.

Wisconsin Bowler Hits 673 For Tuesday's High Score

CLEVELAND, March 22—Gerhard Kirchhoff, Fond Du Lac, Wis., bombarded the American Bowling Congress alleys last night for a 673 count that gave him sixth place in the tournament's singles bracket.

The day's attack threatened at times to dethrone the leaders in the various divisions. Morrie Peterson of Rockford, Ill., took eighth position in the singles with 539, while his fellow townsman, Charles Prithoff, hit 664 to tie for tenth place.

Dr. James Smith and Clarence Tennen of Erie, Pa., teamed to collect 1,231 in the doubles, good for eighth place. Dr. Smith, 60-year-old president of the Erie Bowling association, turned in a 675 set on games of 232, 225 and 218.

Tony Russo, Syracuse, N. Y., slipped in the No. 8 spot in the all-events with an aggregate of 1,840.

Breezy Briefs Of Sport From Various Spots

By EDDIE BRIETZ

NEW YORK, March 22—New York is raving about Mike Novak and Wibs Kautz, the Mutt and Jeff of the Loyola (Chicago) cagers. These kids did some of the heavy work in Loyola's charge to the invitation basketball tournament finals tonight.

Frank Frisch is in Florida getting acquainted with the Bees and Red Sox, whose doings he'll broadcast this season. Lou Ambers scouted Henry Armstrong against Lou Feldman last week. If you don't believe Bill Terry is experimenting in a big way, only three of the 938 Giants—Ot. Moore and Danning—are sure to be regulars this week.

They All Know Him

Philly scribes with the Athletics at Lake Charles had no idea Connie Mack was so well known around Louisiana until one of them received a post card addressed "Care Connie Mack's outfit, St. Charles, La."

Ray Carlen, manager of Lou Nova, flew in from the coast to squawk about Mike Jacobs' plan to shift Baer vs. Nova from the Yankee stadium to the Garden bowl. Wait and see if the San Francisco bay region doesn't go out and bag itself two national golf championship tourneys next year.

Identified!

A paper down in Texas, where he was born and raised, captioned a horse racing piece by our Mr. Gayle Talbot as follows: "Stagehand Shoonin for Widener Cup, says Dope." Head Coach Bob Neyland of Tennessee is in Florida recuperating from the flu.

Mello Bettina, champion of all the light-heavies in New York state, makes his next start in a non-title bout with Joe Somebody in the Hippodrome, April 28.

Earl Sande is grooming the Chief to take the place of Stagehand in the big summer stakes with good old Sceneshifter on deck.

One Minute Interview

After yesterday's going over, Signor Galento said: "I have been examined in Minnesota, Illinois, Pennsylvania, and New Jersey. Florida, Michigan, Missouri and all permits west and I'm still fighting, ain't I? well?"

Today's guest star: James C. Doyle of the Cleveland Plain Dealer, who says: "As Gehrig goes—so what?" Jess Willard makes his eastern debut as a fight referee at Elizabeth, N. J., tonight.

And this is official: Davey O'Brien is still negotiating to play pro football with the Philadelphia Eagles.

El Chico is a 4-1 favorite and Johnstown and Technician are bracketed at 10-1 in James J. Carroll's derby future book.

Training Camp Briefs

TAMPA, Fla., March 22—The word of the dopesters that Cincinnati's Reds are pennant prospects this year has helped the exhibition "gate" considerably. Last year the Reds played to only 10,000 during the Grapefruit league season. The "home" attendance thus far has been 9,871 with three weeks to go.

Pirates Win First
LOS ANGELES—Having won their first game in five, Pittsburgh's Pirates sought another victory against the White Sox today with two of their mound aces, Jim Tobin and Russ Bauers. The rookie outfielders, Fern Bell and Bob Elliott, who helped beat the Cubs yesterday, may start again.

Medwick Signs
ST. PETERSBURG, Fla.—The St. Louis Cardinals' No. 1 headatcher—Joe Medwick's holdout—was gone today, but it's still a secret whether he took the club's $18,000 offer which Branch Rickey said was the top at one of yesterday's conferences, or got the $20,000 he had demanded. Joe has kept in condition but probably won't break into the lineup for a few days.

DODGERS FIRST CHOICE TO END IN LAST PLACE

Brooklyn May Have Some Trouble Keeping 8th Spot In League

BY DREW MIDDLETON
NEW YORK, March 22.—The "Dinosaur Breeder's Gazette and Clarion" is after us again for our annual ratings of the worst clubs in each major baseball league. The "D. B. G. and C." has an unheard of circulation and the world which has been waiting with ill-concealed apathy, shall wait no longer.

While Comrades Talbot and Martin have been wading through the training camps, querying a catcher here, branding a manager there and ever and anon getting skulled by a line drive, we are experting at long range.

To the surprise of many a veteran soothsayer we are picking the Brooklyn Dodgers to finish first in our standing, which means last in the National league. We know it is a big job for our heroes, for the Phillies are everybody's money.

Brooklyn, however, is a club that will be out of the fight after opening day. Only a week ago it was shut out, and a no-hitter at that. It took two pitchers to do the trick. This is evidence the Dodgers are not in the best form. In Mid-season only one pitcher will be needed.

To Dodgers Credit
It is to the credit of the Dodgers that they know more ways of kicking a game away than any other. Keep your eye on Pete Coscarat. What does he do in the no-hitter? He biffs one to the outfield good for a double and forgets to touch first base. Pete, a second baseman, already has been hit on the knicker with a ground ball, a shining tribute to his fielding ability.

But the big edge the Brooklyn hold on the Phillies is their ability to lose on the road. The Dodgers can blow two or three series in the west and then stop off and lose to Albany or West Peapack. They are always in shape.

The Phillies haven't been in the World Series since Ben Franklin's time and they are tough to lose to in any man's league. We do not think they can out

MEMEL GIVEN UP TO GERMANY

Hitler Triumphs Again In "Bloodless" Expansion Drive

memelland after the government communique announcing the "liberation" of the territory was broadcast by radio.

Swastikas Wave, Heils Soar
They marched, with swastikas waving and bells ringing, over the Memel river bridge to nearby Pogegen in Memelland where the townspeople greeted them wildly.

Victor Gallus, Lithuanian governor of the Memel territory, had said last night that Germany delivered a virtual ultimatum to gain cession of the territory.

Gallus said his government was told that, if disturbances occurred before the transfer, German troops would march in to restore order.
One informed source said that arrangements were made with Germany for a guarantee of the German-Lithuanian frontier in return for surrender of Memel.

The Lithuanian government, by its decision to surrender Memel bloodlessly, made it plain that it did not expect any help from the signatories of the Memel conventions. This convention was signed
May 8, 1924, by Lithuania, Britain, France, Italy and Japan. It placed the territory under Lithuanian sovereignty but with a large measure of local autonomy.

Officers Search For Moonshiners

PORTSMOUTH, March 22.—Officers searched wooded hills today near the upper Twin creek region, scene of legendary feuds, for four men who, Sheriff Earl Brandel reported, fatally beat John Welch, 22, after he and three companions located a moonshine still about 18 miles from here.

Alva Riley, 39, and James Evans, 18, held as material witnesses, gave the following account of the slay-ing, Brandel said.
Accompanied by Herbert Lewis,
20, the three drove an automobile as far as they could yesterday over a woods road towards the still which Welch, a Works Progress Administration laborer, had learned about while working in that region.

Leaving the others in the car,
Welch and Lewis went on foot but ran back a short time later carrying a gallon jug and pursued by four men.
The pursuers overtook Welch and beat him with rocks and a wrench
but Lewis escaped into the woods.
Evans was bruised by a rock as he and Riley fled in the machine.

A skull fracture caused Welch's death, Coroner J. D. Rose said. Four sheriff's deputies and two state highway patrolmen found no trace of the quartet last night, Brandel said.
